Rain, Rain, Go Away

Once the Wrights realized the truth about the Sakkaros, they probably had many unanswered questions about their strange and mysterious neighbors. Imagine that, instead of running up the front walk with his parents, the Sakkaro boy had remained in the car with the Wrights. What do you think might have happened? Write a new ending to this story based on these ideas.